PHOTOGRAPHY

For photography lovers, our lodge offers several spaces with beautiful landscapes, both around the property and during ecological tours. For those who enjoy bird watching, the region is rich in biodiversity, with a list of more than 160 species catalogued by experts in the field, just in the area of Amazon Turtle Lodge.

OUR HISTORY

Our journey to becoming part of the Amazon tourism industry has been a long one that began 65 years ago, when the Maia family arrived in the Mamori River region. It was the place chosen by the family leader, Manuel Maia, to raise his children, as the other families that live there did.

Our story was marked by the examples of our parents in their daily chores. We grew up learning how to work the land and respect nature. We were taught to fish only what was necessary, taking only what we needed to sustain ourselves. Mrs. Ozana Maia, our matriarch who still lives in the region, and our late father, taught us and encouraged the habit of planting seedlings in all the areas near our house. We are so grateful for all that we have learned, me, Max Maia, and my brother and business partner Gerson Maia, cultivate the habits of our ancestors, passed down from generations, and we continue to protect, love nature, and plant seeds of hope for the future."

Social Responsibility

Our lodge was created with a Reforestation Project. In 2004, a variety of native chestnut, andiroba and copaiba saplings were planted throughout the hotel area. Today, these beautiful trees provide our guests with fresh air, food and a home for various bird species. After 11 years, we have an estimated 6.886 trees planted. The project has received international recognition from companies that work in partnership with sustainable tourism, and was the reason why Max Maia, founder and director of Amazon Turtle Lodge, was invited in 2012 to speak at Viridian's Annual Convention in New York and present the reforestation project in the region surrounding Amazon Turtle Lodge.

Much of the waste produced at the hotel is sent to the recycling project of the collectors' association at Careiro city, generating profit and income for the collectors. Some of the hotel's organic waste is also treated and used through composting for the hotel's organic garden.

Social Responsibility

We have a Social Project working with the local community, with 80% of our workforce being local residents, creating jobs, income and quality of life for several families in the region. In addition, we offered several training courses and educational lectures on preservation for residents of these communities. Over the years, we have closely followed this development and at the same time maintained the preservation of the forest as much as possible, understanding that it is much more than our source of income.

PÉ-DE-PINCHA

The Amazon Turtle Lodge supports and assists the "Pé-de-Pincha" project, a conservation initiative for turtles – Amazon turtles, tracajá and Iacá – that works together with traditional communities to raise environmental awareness in the Amazon region, developing the qualifications of volunteer environmental agents and students from the Federal University of Amazonas and education professionals. The turtles' life cycle is monitored and stimulated, from the nest to the release of the young into the wild, thus ensuring the conservation and survival of the species.

THE IDEAL PLACE FOR FAMILIES

Our lodge is also perfect for families traveling with young children and teenagers, as we are located on dry land, with plenty of space and freedom, allowing children to run and play safely and parents to relax and enjoy all the advantages the hotel has to offer. For children, it is also a great opportunity to increase their knowledge of nature, play outdoors, and have contact with the soil and the river. They love and have fun on the tours and return with lots of new experiences to share.
